SNODGRASS TO BE EVANGELIST

LOCAL CHRISTIAN CHURCH MINISTER RESIGNS

IS EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1

Since Coming Here More Than Six Years Ago, Pastor Has Attained State-Wide Reputation

The Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church here for the last six years, presented his resignation, effective September 1, to the members of the congregation yesterday morning.

The resignation was accepted by the official board of the church and a committee, consisting of W. C. Frank, W. E. Goforth and Dr. Fred Keller, appointed to arrange for a successor. The committee will start to work immediately and expects to have several prospects in view within a short time.

The Rev. Mr. Snodgrass will engage in evangelistic work for the next year at least. He has a number of meetings scheduled. Later on, he may accept a pastorate as he has already received several calls from large churches in various sections of the country. In the meantime, the Rev. Mr. Snodgrass and family will continue to make their home in Maryville.

The Rev. Mr. Snodgrass came to Maryville from Savannah in March, 1919. He had been pastor for several years at the Andrew County church.

During his pastorate in Maryville he has attained a reputation that is not limited by county lines and has a wide circle of friends throughout Missouri, a member of the official board of the church said this morning. Because of his decided stand on every important public question that has arisen, Mr. Snodgrass has been termed "the fighting parson" for things he believes right.

It has been said that everyone knew or could easily find out where "Snodgrass stood on anything." It was in the Senatorial campaign of three years ago that Snodgrass gained a statewide reputation through his fight on Senator James A. Reed. Although a Democrat, the Christian Church minister openly campaigned for R. R. Brewster of Kansas City, the Republican candidate. This instance also added to his reputation as "the fighting parson."

By his open campaign and warfare against the modern dance, Mr. Snodgrass too has attained a wide reputation and, as stated by a member of the official board this morning, "he has packed his church to the doors by the sincerity of his fight on the dance."

In the spring and summer of 1921, a contest was held between the men's classes of Maryville and Clarinda. Early in July Snodgrass toured Northwest Missouri and visited practically every community in this section of the state. As a result, one week later, approximately 3,500 men were present in the Men's Bible Class of the First Christian Church and Snodgrass had set a new world's record for the largest men's Bible Class. Maryville won the contest by a comfortable margin.

The Men's Bible Class now has an average attendance of 125 and is one of the recognized forces in Nodaway County life. It was organized by the Rev. Mr. Snodgrass soon after he came to Maryville.

Regarding his resignation and plans for the future, the Rev. M. Snodgrass made the following statement:

"I hereby tender my resignation as pastor of the Maryville Christian Church, to take effect September 1st, if I may be released by that time.

"This action comes as a result of much thought and prayer and I may truly say with no little sorrow upon the part of myself and family. But it is often the case that temporary pleasures and happy fellowships must be sacrificed for the good of the causes which we try to serve.

"My pastoral relationships with the church extend through a period of six years and four months, marking the longest pastorate in the entire history of this church. Our work together has been during the period immediately following the war, the most critical and at the same time the most hazardous of the age. At a time when worldliness and indifference had made troublesome inroads into all

$6,500 BLAZE AT MAITLAND

TWO FRAME BUILDINGS THERE ARE DESTROYED.

WATER SUPPLY LOW

Maryville Fire Department Called But Could Give No Assistance—Peoples Bank Damaged.

Because of the low supply of water in a new well at Maitland the fire department there was unable to check the flames in two restaurants and fire consumed the two two-story buildings of Wyman & Meadows this morning.

The buildings joined each other and fire broke out shortly before 6 o'clock in the Wyman building. The destroyed structures were the last frame buildings in the business district, located on the east side of Main street.

The fire was caused by a gasoline stove exploding in the Wyman restaurant about 6 o'clock this morning. The total damage is estimated at approximately $6,500—$3,000 for the two buildings and $3,500 for the contents.

The loss is partially covered by insurance. One of the walls and the roof of the People's Bank were slightly damaged by the flames. All of the contents were unharmed.

The Maitland fire department succeeded in extinguishing the flames about 9 o'clock this morning.

A few of the fixtures of the Meadows restaurant were saved. The Meadows family lived in the upper story of the building.

Burt M. Rowley, chief of the Maryville fire department, was called about 6 o'clock this morning to send the fire department to Maitland. At that time it was reported Maitland was without water and on account of that fact the fire department after conferring with Mayor W. O. Garrett decided they could give practically no assistance.

Cyclone

Baby cyclone swept down on Cincinnati and flattened out a good share of the buildings in the Union Stockyards with thousands of dollars' damage. This shows a small segment of the devastated area.

TAKES LIFE BY HANGING

MRS. ROWENA WILCOX, NEAR ORRSBURG COMMITS SUICIDE.

ILL HEALTH IS CAUSE

Dead Body Is Found By Her Husband Hanging From Rafter at 9:30 This Morning In Cow Barn.

Mrs. Rowena Wilcox, age 69 years, wife of Willis Wilcox, living on a farm one mile east and two miles south of Orrsburg on Honey Creek, committed suicide shortly after 9 o'clock this morning by hanging. Ill health for the last two years is contributed as the underlying cause for the act. Dr. Frank Wallis, coroner, made a view inquest and gave a verdict of "suicide."

Mrs. Wilcox went to the cow barn about 9 o'clock, tied a rope to one of the rafters, with one end around her neck and then made the fatal leap, which, in the opinion of the coroner, broke her neck. Her husband, who had been doing some errands about the farm, missed her, and when the search ended at the cow barn, about 9:30 o'clock, the body was still warm.

Mrs. Wilcox was thought to be feeling better yesterday after several days of serious illness and seemed as usual early this morning. However, it is thought she was demented at the time she committed suicide.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox are old residents of Nodaway County, being early settlers in the vicinity of Orrsburg, which is six miles east and eight miles north of Maryville. The dead woman is said to have hinted at times in last two or three years of taking her own life.

No arrangements for the funeral had been made this afternoon. Mrs. Wilcox is survived by her husband and five children. The children are Mrs. Elmer Porter and Mrs. Lewis Moore, Parnell; Mrs. Carrie Strader of Colorado Springs, Colo.; Lawrence and Varvil Wilcox of Orrsburg. Four sisters and one brother are also living. They are Virgil Hunt and Marion Hunt of Ravenwood; Alfred Hunt of Orrsburg; Milton Hunt of Ridgeway, Colo.; and Mrs. Addie Case of California.

C. G. Westfall Was Found Dead Saturday

Funeral Services Held This Afternoon At Price Funeral Chapel—Was 62 Years Old.

Charles G. Westfall, who had been employed on a farm near Rosendale for the last two years, was found dead in a lot on the farm of Mr. Graff, for whom he had been working, at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He had worked in the corn field during the morning and at noon complained of not feeling well. It is thought that death was due to the excessive heat. The body was brought to Maryville Saturday evening. Funeral services were held at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Price Funeral Chapel conducted by the Rev. S. P. Allison of the Presbyterian Church of which Mr. Westfall was a member. Luther A. Richman sang two selections. Burial was in Miriam cemetery. The pallbearers were LeGrand Gann, Hal Hooker, D. E. Hotchkin, Charles Wadley, Arch Frank, and Luther Eckles.

Mr. Westfall was born at Macomb, Ill., December 25, 1863. He came to the home of his sister, Mrs. F. M. Martin of Maryville, about twenty-five years ago and had lived in and near here since. Besides Mrs. Martin of Maryville, he is survived by the following brothers and sister: C. Frank and L. D. Westfall of Oregon; L. L. Westfall, Spokane, Wash.; Ralph B. Westfall, Port Angeles, Wash.; Mrs. Myra Hays, Hollywood, Calif., and Hugh H. Westfall of Kansas City, who arrived yesterday for the funeral.

A refund will be made to all purchasers of season tickets to the 1925 chautauqua providing the guaranteed number are sold before 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon preceding the opening day, according to the plans of the directors of the chautauqua association.

All season tickets sold before this date will have a coupon attached and if the guarantee is reached, the holder can present the coupon at the box office and receive the refund. Tickets sold after 4 p. m., July 29 will not have the coupons attached to them.

EVEN DEBATE OVER PRAYER

DARROW OBJECTS TO RITUAL AT TRIAL.

FEELING IS VERY TENSE

Weapon of Defense Is Motion To Quash Indictment—Jury Is Sent Out While Atorneys Argue

Courtroom, Dayton, Tenn., July 13—The religious issue leaped to the front in the Scopes evolution case today when counsel for the defense formally protested against opening of the trial with a prayer.

The protest was voiced to Presiding Judge Ralston by Clarence Darrow as court covened and while crowds were staging a rush for seats.

"Is it the custom," asked Darrow, "to open a case in this courtroom with a prayer for the success of one of the litigants?"

"It is the usual custom," the court replied, "to have a prayer if there is a minister present."

Darrow was the first attorney to enter the courtroom. The judge followed and Darrow met him with the protest. William Jennings Bryan followed a moment later, crossing to the defense table to publicly shake hands with Darrow.

After a conference with Judge Ralston, Darrow said he would not enter objection in the court record against the prayer today because a minister had already been invited. He gave notice, however, that objection would be made if the practice were followed again.

The feeling in the courtroom was so tense that opposing lawyers quarreled over two chairs. The defense sent out to a furniture store for the chairs and when a deputy sheriff returned with them, they were seized by prosecuting attorneys. This caused a storm of protest from Darrow's associates who shouted across the courtroom and the chairs were finally retrieved through peace negotiations of Sheriff R. S. Harris.

The weapon of the defense was a motion to quash the indictment against Scopes on Constitutional grounds. It was made by John R. Neal, chief of defense counsel. Clashes between state and defense attorneys followed immediately when A. Thomas Stewart, circuit attorney-general, moved that the jury be excluded.

Bitterness cropped into the exchange of arguments but Judge Ralston finally sent the jury out, its members smiling at the prospects of escaping from the courtroom's terrific heat. The defense will contend the law itself was so vague and indistinct the defendant did not know the nature of his alleged violation.

ROBERTSON IS UPHELD

COURT FINDS FOR RESPONDENT IN MANDAMUS SUIT.

APPEAL IS SUSTAINED

Judge John M. Dawson Gives Decision in Circuit Court Late Saturday Afternoon.

Holding that proceedings in probate court in the matter of appointing a curator of the estate of Eva L. Bartles were all regular and there was no ground for issuing an alternative writ of mandamus, Judge John M. Dawson found for the respondent late Saturday afternoon in circuit court in the mandamus suit of the state of Missouri, ex rel., Eva L. Bartles, against Judge Jesse F. Robertson of the probate court and ordered the alternative mandamus writ quashed.

Counsel for the relator, Miss Bartles, excepted and filed a motion for a new trial. The motion for a new trial was overruled and the relator then filed an affidavit in appeal to the Kansas City Court of Appeals, which was sustained by the court, upon approval of the circuit clerk of a $5,100 bond to be filed in his office within ten days.

The allegation of the relator that irregularities existed in handling of matters in the Bartles estate in probate court were found not true by the court. The court has ten days to return final decree in this case and had not been made this morning.

The case has been hanging fire for more than two months, since the issuing of an alternative writ of mandamus during May, resulting in a legal battle during several short sessions of circuit court since that time. The case grew out of the refusal of the judge of the probate court to confirm the appointment of a curator designated by the minor, as stated the original alternative writ.

Miss Eva L. Bartles, who lives near Sheridan, had asked the court to appoint E. E. Williams in the place of Albert Wilson, who lives in the same vicinity, and who has been acting curator and guardian since February, 1924. In the arguments Saturday afternoon, which became quite heated on both sides, revealed that the refusal to appoint the curator designated by the minor, brought out in the mandamus writ, was merely the formal cause and not the underlying reasons for bringing the suit.

NEW CRISIS IN CHINESE ROW

BRITAIN MAY PLAY LONE HAND AT PEKING.

TO START DISCUSSION

Secretary Kellogg Is Back At Washington After Week-End Conference With Coolidge.

Swampscott, Mass., July 13.—President Coolidge was today facing the most important diplomatic crisis in his White House incumbency.

In the Chinese situation the executive has before him a problem of first magnitude created almost over night by the receipt of information that Great Britain is planning to play a lone hand in the Orient to the exclusion of the eight other powers that are signatories to the Chinese treaties negotiated at the Washington arms conference.

Secretary of State Kellogg, handling his first big issue on foreign policy, is back in Washington after a week-end conference with the President here under instructions to open informal discussion with the British government at once to determine just what Great Britain plans to do with regard to China. Every possible step will be taken to forestall the English move which, if carried to fulfillment, would nullify the Washington treaty.

The American move to offset any such efforts will involve insistence that the Washington agreement be followed to the letter.

The President and his diplomatic aides are much concerned over the British attitude.

London, July 13—No agreement has been reached between Japan, the United States and Great Britain regarding China, it was stated officially at the foreign office today.

It was said discussion regarding the possibility and scope of a tariff conference were going on but that no decision had been reached.

Rainbow Division in Reunion at Chicago

Chicago, July 13.—A single war-time battalion, one thousand men strong, took Chicago today. They were veterans of the Forty-second, Rainbow division, here from all parts of the country for their seventh annual reunion.

"No, they are not all here," Col. Bell Talbott, a big Texan, said reminiscently. "A good many of them had to be left behind when the armistice rang down the curtain on the big show, but those that are here will never forget the others."

The convention will close Wednesday with business and social gatherings.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

Washington. — Ex-Representative "Alfalfa Bill' Murray of Oklahoma is disgusted. He writes from South America to friends here that the spirit of the old-time pioneers is dead in North American breasts.

Some time ago Bill got a land concession in Bolivia—a tract the size of half a dozen Texas counties at least. His plan was to colonize it with a lot of hard-fisted, tough-fibered frontiersmen from the "states"—men of the type of the by-gone "covered wagon" days.

A "Wild West," in short, was what Bill was trying to create.

He loved the "wild west" in this country while it stayed wild, and pined for it as it began to grow more and more domesticated.

Finally his yen became so acute that he decided to see if he couldn't scare up a substitute for the real old thing to satisfy it. Somebody told him about the only unconquered wilderness, which nevertheless is a nice place to live in, was to be found in central South America.

Accordingly, away Bill journeyed to South America and hied himself, as nearly as he could, to the center of it.

There, indeed, he found a first-class wilderness, wholly unconquered, just the raw material for the old "wild west" he remembered so well—a little hotter, perhaps, but all the better, from an agricultural standpoint, for twelve months a year of crop-growing weather.

"Now", thought Bill, " to get some wild westerners to locate here."

For a "wild west" has to be something besides mere landscape. To conquer nature, conquerors are necessary, and conquest is what "Alfalfa Bill" Murray lives for.

It isn't the wilderness in itself that he likes. The job of taming it is what he gets his fun out of.

Having done so, he's ready to move on to a new one, just as he moved on from Oklahoma to Bolivia, when the former got too civilized for him.

"Nowhere else in the world", said Bill to him self, "are there such pioneers as back in the 'states,' where I came from. Gosh! I remember 'em in the old days! How they'll jump at a chance to get back to 'em.!"

He propaganized accordingly. He offered extremely favorable terms to the land hungry, for it was recruits he wanted rather than their money.

He made pioneering sound blamed romantic. He described the country as a cross bteween a garden of paradise and a storehouse of riches, which was true enough, but Bill rather slighted the detail that settlers would have to start from scratch on the task of developing the resources he was bragging about.

Probably he took it for granted that as experienced frontiersmen, they'd have sense enough to know that without having it diagramed.

What Bill forgot was that the old-timers he had in mind either were dead or mostly too old to make fresh starts in a new country. He just happened to be an exception.

He got colonists all right, but they were the old hard-shells' sons and grandsons—two entirely different and progressively softer generations. A look at Bill's wilderness scared 'em.

Great Flame Spectacle Filmed for 'Quo Vadis'

One of the greatest fire spectacles ever filmed for the screen is said to be that of the burning of Rome in First National's new and gigantic version of "Quo Vadis."

Thousands of man, women and children are seen fleeing from their blazing homes with what few most treasured possessions they can carry in their arms. It is a maelstrom of panic-stricken humanity battling itself for refuge from the terrible flames.

"Quo Vadis" will be shown at the Empire Theater tonight and Tuesday. Emil Jannings, famed for his characterizations in "Passion," 'Deception" and others, has the role of Nero.

Tendence to Use Many Pictures With Short Captions in Community Advertising

The following is the thirty-fifth installment of the article on "Community Advertising," written for the Democrat-Forum and Tribune by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

Communities must not be concerned so much with what an inquiry costs as with its business-getting potentialities. The Hot Springs, Ark., Chamber of Commerce has found that direct inquiries cost on an average, $6.85. Their citizens have learned that the more money invested in printer's ink delivering the message to the people of the nation, the greater the city's patronage. It is a recognized fact that $100,000.00 spent in advertising will bring more than 4 times the results obtained by expending only $25,000.00, by reason of the fact that the more often the advertisement is published the more indelibly the message imprints itself upon the memory of the reader.

There is now a tendency in community advertising literature to use many pictures with short, catchy captions as an aid in telling the story. This sort of selling literature is then followed up with an article composed by a well-known writer who has visited the community and has a happy way of presenting things.

Whether or not the people of a community admit it, they become enthusiastic about good literature that is designed to advertise the place where they live. Some one must have the vision to insist that only the best forms be used. The useless waste entailed in using indifferently conceived and poorly executed sales literature is exceedingly disappointing to alert users of direct-by-mail advertising. Community leaders must come to understand that competition requires and demands literature of consequence.

Every community is confronted with 2 major selling problems. One is how to secure new patrons, and the other is how to hold the patrons who reside there. The good will of the home folks is an ever present problem. A citizen worth having is a citizen worth keeping. Literature can be written to serve both purposes. To the resident such literature is a periodic reminder that he has a part to play in bettering 'his' community.

Kansas City, July 13 — United States Senator George H. Williams of St. Louis, Saturday night, in effect, announced his candidacy to succeed himself in the primaries in 1926, in an address before the Twentieth Century Republican club here.

"I have been asked whether I would be a candidate to succeed myself," Senator Williams said. "My acceptance by Governor Baker carries that implication. The Reward of Achievement

Mr. George E. Roberts, Vice President of the National City bank, in Nation's Business for April, 1925, might have been writing pointedly of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) when he said:

"The clamor for official regulation of business arises primarily because men do not understand economic forces. There are few lines of business in which these forces will not protect the public. In normal times, it seldom happens that unusual profits are made, but that competition quickly arises and corrects the situation.

"Our economic progress has been accomplished under an individualistic system. The theory of this system is that everyone shall have for his own, as nearly as may be, that which results from his own efforts. This inspires him to labor, to produce and to accumulate, by rendering those services to the community which the community is willing to pay for. He is inspired to labor by an ambition to achieve, to win distinction and to render service.

"The argument for widespread government ownership and regulation of the oil industry is based upon the theory that the wealth employed in this industry benefits nobody but the owners. This is like claiming that the people who benefit most from the development of the steam engine are owners of steam engines; that the people who gain most from the railroads, are those having investments in the railroads. The fallacy of this theory is apparent."

The people who benefit most by the money invested in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are those who consume its products.

Every citizen is benefited by every investment of capital which increases the supply or lowers the cost of any commodity.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) serves society by increasing the supply and lowering the price of petroleum products.

In recent years this Company has anticipated progress by being among the first to introduce "employe ownership of stock in the Company."

Today, more than 15,000 employes are stockholders.

To enable its employes to participate to the greatest extent possible, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) adds 50c to every $1.00 that an employe invests in stock in the Company.

The result of this far-sighted policy has been to create a better feeling among the employes and to promote a spirit of enthusiasm.

Today, every employe-stockholder takes great pride in the fact that he is a partner in the business and that as he shares in the profits so must he assume his share of the responsibility.

It is such spirit and consequent interest in the daily task that develops the individual man and fits the office boy for the clerkship; the clerk for the executive position, and the executive for the Board of Directors.

Thus does the individual in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) organization of 27,000 reap reward according to his achievements. Thirty million people of the Middle West get all that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana)—as an organization and as a group of individuals—is able to render in a superior, unfailing service.

BUSINESS NOW AT HIGH MARK

LOANS AND INVESTMENTS HIGHER THAN IN 1920.

GAINS IN LAST YEAR

Today's Statement of Federal Reserve Board Shows Healthy Condition of American Financial Structure.

Washington, July 13.—Loans and investments of the federal reserve banks total more than $29,250,000,000, the federal reserve board announced today.

Despite the fact that the recognized peak of business was reached in November, 1920, loans and investments are now three billion dollars higher than in that year.

Within the last twelve months, the gain has been approximately $2,500,000,000. Federal reserve member bank credits, after an unusually rapid increase during the last half of 1924, remained at a relatively constant level during the first six months of this year, according to the statement.

The board pointed out that the federal reserve banks now have approximately $2,977,000,000 reserves against a requirement of $1,451,000,000.

On the other hand, reserves of member banks are but fourteen million dollars above the $2,092,000,000 requirement, according to today's statement.

FRUIT TREES IN FAIR SHAPE

STATE NURSERY INSPECTOR IS IN MARYVILLE

INSECTS ARE ACTIVE

Crown Borers Have Affected Plants to Considerable Extent—San Jose Scale is in Evidence Here

Strawberry plants in Northwest Missouri have been greatly affected this year by "crown borers," insects which dig down deep in the plant and desetroy it, according to G. L. Davis, state nursery inspector, who is in Maryville today.

As a result of the work of these boring insects, strawberry production was decreased considerably this year, Mr. Davis said. There is no way to combat this condition, the state inspector said, except to plow under the affected plants and replant as far away from the old patch as possible.

Mr. Davis' work is to inspect the nurseries in the various sections of the state. All fruit from diseased trees is barred from shipment as are trees, flowers and plants affected by insects. In this way it is hoped to prevent the spread of plant diseases.

The San Jose scale has been especially evident on all fruit and shade trees this year, Mr. Davis said. This pest spreads through nursery stock being shipped to various parts of the country and is supposed to have originated in California. It is the worst orchard pest in the state this year, Mr. Davis said, and will kill off young peach trees in two or three years. It will also render apple and pear orchards practically useless.

A lime sulphur spray is recommended by Mr. Davis to kill this scale. The College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri has also perfected an oil emulsion spray to be used on the orchards and information can be secured from the College at Columbia relative to this spray.

The severe winter affected the spread of the scale but did not check the crown borers in the strawberry plants, Mr. Davis said. The trees in this part of the state are in fair shape, the inspector said.

Tourists at Camp at Bethany Robbed

Police in St. Joseph on Lookout for Two Men and Women Wanted in Thefts

(St. Joseph Gazette)

Highways, tourist camps and the Missouri river bridge were being watched by police today in hope of finding trace of two men and a woman, who are believed to have "cleaned out" campers and autoists at the Bethany, Mo., tourist camp during the night Saturday.

While several minor thefts were reported the largest was that of $300 in cash and a book of American Express company traveler's cheques belonging to Chet Keyes, Quincy, Ill.

First reports of the thefts resulted in a call to the Harrison county sheriff, J. P. Mansfold, who discovered that only one car had left the camp during the night or until the discovery of the thefts in which clothing hanging over camp chairs and even secreted under sleeper's pillows had been thoroughly searched.

Descriptions of the couple, the make of the car, the fact that they drove westward, and an Oklahoma license lead authorities at Bethany to believe that the three would pass through St. Joseph.

THE HIGH COST OF DYING

When a man comes to the end of the trail his going is always at the cost of much grief and sorrow for his loved ones. That cannot be helped.

But men can so arrange their affairs that this bill of grief will not be weighted further with worry and loss.

To lighten this inevitable burden for your family, it is imperative that you think and act now—make your will, appoint your executor and arrange your affairs so that, in case of accident, your loved ones' loss will be minimized.

religious work; people's minds disturbed by sharp and divisive political questions resulting from the war; and during a period of the most depressing financial conditions in years.

"I am glad to say to you that I have no grouch—no complaints—not an ill-feeling toward any single one of my many acquaintances in or out of the church—my resignation from this pastorate is not prompted by any such sinister motives.

"It is simply a matter of doing more for the cause of Christ which I love with all my heart, and for myself and family, whose interests I must of necessity serve. At this time I am tendered two splendid pastorates, but it is not my intention to accept settled work for a year or so.

"For some time I have been receiving flattering calls for evangelistic work in some of the best churches of our Brotherhood. I expect to spend some months satisfying this desire of my heart to go into these churches with the simple Gospel of Christ, and in a dignified and sane manner win men by the hundreds to a simple faith in and a humble acceptance of their Saviour, which work is the burning passion of my soul. I shall have no part in any undignified or insane program of evangelism. I believe there was never a greater need for the true evangelist who will be a real prophet for this age, calling men from their sins and to a whole-hearted acceptance of Jesus, the faithful satisfier of men's souls.

"For the time being we will continue to make Maryville our home, the schools here our schools, and the church here our church. Our interest in the church here will not slacken. The same enthusiastic support which has characterized our work in the past will continue. There will be no change in the measure of our interest in the work here, simply in the method of expressing it.

"I know of no church anywhere with greater possibilities than the Maryville Christian church. The church leadership of North West Missouri is here. In Bible School work, in men's work, in student's work, in the number ministered to and reached for Christ, this church stands in the lead of all in this section. In this we have pardonable pride and only demonstrates the wonderful possibilities that stretch out before the church here.

"The Missionary year just closed has been the greatest in offerings we have ever had. In the six years work together one thousand souls have been won to Christ and taken membership with the local church—while through our ministry together, seven hundred more have been won in other fields. This makes our church strongly evangelistic, and if I should wish for this church any one thing above another it would be that the spiritual and devotional fires necessary to an evangelistic passion would never die but increase in power with coming years.

"This church is confronted with problems at this hour big enough to challenge the best. Perhaps the greatest one, materially speaking, is that of an educational plant to properly house our rapidly growing Bible school. Men and women of vision and money must be found in this church who will be big enough to rise up and guarantee a building program consistent with the dignity, honor and power of a great church like this. I shall be sorely disappointed if this problem does not receive the consideration of the Board and Pastor at the very beginning of the new regime. Blue prints are now in your hands outlining a building plan, the realization of which would speak a new word in Bible school architecture in all this great state. Such an honor could well be Maryville's. No church has a better right to, nor is there one more deserving of the leadership which such a church plant would give. When once this problem comes to be the possession of every member, the $75,000 or more necessary to its realization will be immediately forthcoming.

"My dear Christian friends, you will not think me over presumptuous will you, if I present one other problem of this church? I speak here of the regular budget—the bread and butter fund out of which all local expenses are paid. I hesitate to speak of this, for it is not my purpose or desire to pledge you to any sort of a program for the future or offer any suggestions that would in any way hinder the program of my successor. But begging your pardon in advance, and confident that you will sympathetically understand me, I wish to suggest just this: That next year you provide a larger regular income for this church.

"You cannot talk of decreasing the budget without taking a backward step, the last thing in the world you will want to do. There is but one alternative, a program calling for an increase in individual pledges, every member giving and all keeping their pledges paid up. I am wondering if the time hasn't come in this church when a "ten dollar a week club" should be organized—some of our families giving through the regular budget at least ten dollar a week, as many are doing in other churches, some even in our own town.

"None of us can even imagine who our pastor will be from September on. The pulpit committee to be appointed will know pretty well what this church needs and wants. They will spare no effort to locate that man. I want to pledge myself and my family, together with everyone of you, members of the Maryville church, NOW to stand by him loyally, heroically, Christianity. I am glad that for awhile, longer, at least I can be a member of this church. I want to be a worker, a contributor, anything I can do to advance its interests, and I shall covet the suggestions of my leaders as to what my part of the work is.

"Mrs. Snodgrass, the children and I are happy for the many friendships we have made in these years. To officiate as minister at more than two hundred weddings, and still more funerals has drawn me mighty close to a host of people in these parts. We are glad for our friendships in the other churches of the town and even in no church."

No Chance for Coal Strike Until 1927

Is Opinion of Officials of United Mine Workers Under What Is Known as "Jacksonville Agreement."

Du Quoin, Ill., July 13.—(United Press)—There is little chance of a strike of coal miners in this district before 1927, local officials of the United Mine Workers of America told the United Press.

The miners in this region are working under an agreement known as the "Jacksonville agreement" which does not expire until March 31, 1927. Miners of five states composing what is known as the Central Competitive District all work under this agreement. The five states are Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and parts of Kentucky and Pennsylvania.

Possibility of a strike of the anthracite miners in the east, following the present wage conference at Atlantic City, N. J., may mean a boom to the local market.

Although there will not be many large concerns switch their furnaces from hard coal burners to soft coal burners, it is felt that a strike in the east willl open up the local market to some extent.

Wage conferences over the scale of the paid in this district at the end of the present agreement will start early in 1927. Operators claim they will seek to have the wage reduced to the 1917 agreement—five dollars a day—while the miners already have let it be known they do not intend to stand for a decrease.

"God Brings Peace to Williamson County"

Is Statement of Evangelist About Strife Torn Part of Illinois—500 Conversion There.

Herrin, Ill., July 13.—(United Press)—God alone has brought peace to hate torn Williamson County.

Howard S. Williams, tall and eloquent evangelist who for seven weeks has been preaching the "brotherhood of man" theory to the fued district, is authority for this statement.

"The credit for whatever has been done in Williamson County in the past seven weeks is due to God" Williams said.

For two and a half years Williams has been "carrying God to the outlying districts." Prior to that time he was a newspaperman at Hattiesburg, Miss.

He came to Herrin—hot bed of feudal Williamson County—seven weeks ago and since that time there has been more than 500 conversions. It is his most successful campaign.

The closing services were Sunday night before a packed hall.

There is no chicanery nor mystery about Williams' campaign for peace in the county.

"Herrin is different today because the people have opened their hearts to Jesus Christ," Williams told the United Press.

"Jesus is the only cure for the sins, heart aches, burdens and cares of humanity. I am simply a salesman for Jesus Christ. He saves all who will come to him in the way the Bible points out."

There is little to tell about the spell he has woven over the hard-fighting Williamson County people.

"People today want a simple story of Jesus and love. Simplicity in presenting the gospel is a vital factor. That is what I have used.

"I simply tell the people Christ will forgive and put love, peace and joy in the hearts of man and woman. My methods are to tell in a simple way of a savior that gives and leave it to the convert to join the church of his own choice."

His methods have been successful, as the 500 conversions and the quieting of the hate war shows.

Denver Janitor Cleans Up Fortune in Oil

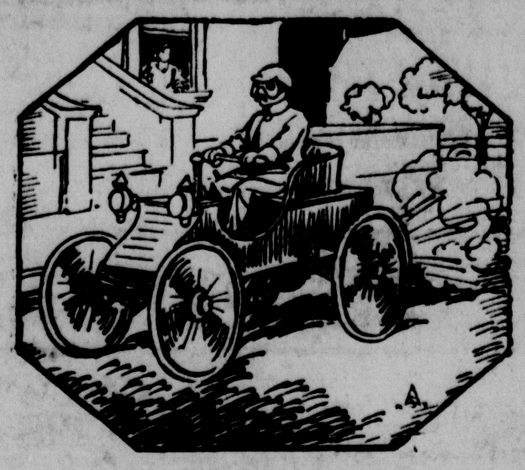
Denver, Colo., July 13—Jesse Coppers, $100 a month janitor at the city hall, has left his broom and brass polish for a quarter of a million dollar fortune made in Oklahoma oil.

The third floor of the city hall went unswept over the week end, for Coppers was sleeping. He failed to report to the head janitor Saturday.

A telegram told the erstwhile janitor of his good fortune. He had taken a "flyer" on an oil well near Ardmore, Okla., with two friends with the result that today all three are rich.

"I'll probably be back after my broom in a month or so" Coppers said. "I've made fortunes twice before and lost them."

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Birkenholz and family and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Birkenholz were dineur guests Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Earl New of Parnell.



Small Danger Here

That was in the days of the pioneer automobile that groaned and coughed its way through the streets to the accompaniment of cheers or jeers according to the temper of the crowd.

Today, speed with its dangers is the symbol of the motor car. Accident is lurking at every turn of the road. Automobiles were the cause of more than 469,000 injuries and deaths in 1924.

There is protection as well as prudence for the man who drives. There is financial safety for the man who walks.

Automobile insurance is now a great institution. We shall be glad to explain it to you and to afford you the protection that you need.

CORN HERE IS 84 PER CENT

JULY CROP REPORT FORECAST MADE BY STATE DEPARTMENT

STATE ACREAGE HIGHER

Winter Wheat Turning Out Better Over State Than Expected—Harvesting Delayed Around St. Joseph.

The July forecast of crop conditions by the farmers of Nodaway County estimates corn to be 84 per cent normal, winter wheat 79 per cent, oats 84 per cent, potatoes 88 per cent, hay 74 per cent, apples 49 per cent, grapes 57 per cent and pastures 82 per cent.

Missouri corn at 89 per cent normal indicates 31.6 bushels per acre upon 6,890,000 acres, an increase of 5 per cent over 6,562,000 last year. Total indicated yield is 217,724,000 bushels compared to 107,612,000 bushels last year, as shown in the joint report of E. A. Logan, U. S. Department of Agriculture and Jewell Mayes, Missouri State Board of Agriculture. The prospect now is for a larger corn crop than either 1922, 1923 or 1924, due to the largest acreage for several years.

Corn stands for 1925 are fair, and color generally good. Growth has been satisfactory, except that considerable acreage has not had usual number of cultivations, and scattered fields are grassy and weedy. Growth has been rapid, although size is not uniform.

In Holt, Buchanan, DeKalb, Ray and Caldwell the season was decidedly too wet for best corn development during May and June. Planting was late and cultivation delayed. The season has been too dry, and rain has been needed from Cedar County south to Webster, east to Pemiscot, where corn and cotton have been in great need of moisture.

Chinch bugs are going from wheat into corn, and are doing damage in Montgomery, Lincoln, Lawrence and other local areas. On the whole, Missouri corn prospect is good. The national crop indicates 3,095,176,000 bushels or 650,000,000 bushels more than 1924.

Missouri winter wheat is turning out in many places better than expected, and harvest condition of 79 per cent indicates 13.03 bushels per acre, or 30,125,000 bushels from the 2,312,000 acres harvested, compared to 12.8 bushels upon 1,921,000 yielding 24,589,000 in 1924.

Harvesting was delayed, and much difficulty experienced around St. Joseph and other northern counties, but threshing is well under way in south half of state. May frosts did greatest damage in Gasconade, Franklin, Warren, Lincoln, Pike, Callaway and Montgomery counties. Hessian fly reduced yields in Dade, Johnson, Moniteau, Morgan, Audrian and other sections, while chinch bugs are worst in Johnson, Moniteau, Cooper, Montgomery and Lincoln counties.

The 3,000 acres of spring wheat with condition of 80 per cent, indicates 40,000 bushels; total winter and spring wheat crop of 30,166,000 bushels compared to 24,629,000 in 1924.

The national crop is 404,000,000 bushels of winter wheat against 590,000,000 last year; spring wheat 276,000,000 against 283,000,000 last year.

Missouri oats at 80 per cent of normal indicate 25.6 bushels or 43,520,000 bushels upon 1,700,000 acres compared to 27.5 per acre or 41,745,000 bushels from 1,518,000 acres last year.

Generally earliest sown oats were best, although in many sections dry, cool weather of May and early June resulted in short straw and heads, but quality is generally good. Some difficulty was experienced in harvesting from rains and soft fields. Oats harvest followed closely upon wheat.

Rye acreage of 22,000 indicates 268,000 bushels compared to 270,000 bushels from 20,000 acres harvested in 1924. Barley from 5,000 acres indicated 25.5 bushels per acre or 128,000 bushels compared to 100,000 bushels last year.

Missouri hay prospects are for lowest hay production for some years, due to unfavorable May and June weather Tame hay acreage of 3,441,000 at 71 per cent indicates 1.07 tons per acre or 3,682,000 tons compared to 4,820,000 tons last year from 3,476,000 acres, averaging 1.39 per acre. Timothy is quite generally poor, condition 62 per cent. Clover 69 per cent; clover and timothy mixed 70 per cent; alfalfa 87 per cent; hay crops in southern counties are shorter than last year, while northern counties show improvement since June rains. Prairie hay 78 per cent upon acreage of 129,000, depends upon the necessity for pastures.

CAILLAUX IS AGAIN VICTOR

HIS NEW TAX LAW IS FINALLY ADOPTED

OFFERED TO QUIT

Briand and Painleve Appeals to Finance Minister on Grounds of Patriotism—Bastile Day Celebrated

Paris, July 13—Joseph Caillaux, veteran of many political fights, came out victorious this morning when after the most spectacular parlimentary session in recent years the Chamber of Deputies passed the finance minister's new tax law by a vote of 325 to 245.

The vote came at 6:15 o'clock this morning and ended a night of parliamentary wrangling during which the Chamber of Deputies thrice rejected Caillaux's thirty-three-billion-franc budget bill only to have its refusal three times overridden by the Senate.

At midnight, Caillaux had offered to resign but M. Briand, foreign minister, and M. Painleve, premier, appealled to his patriotism.

Meanwhile, that other Paris, without thought of politics, was getting an early start in the celebration of Bastile Day, the French national holiday.

Declares Prohibition Movement Spreading

In a Speech at City Club at Kansas City Today He Told of Mellon's Liquor Affiliations.

Kansas City, July 13.—Declaring that world-wide prohibition will come eventually because it is an economic necessity, Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania arrived here today for a speech tonight. Governor Pinchot declared he had only contempt for an employer to forbid his employes from drinking and yet violate the law himself. Mrs. Pinchot accompanied the governor.

Kansas City, July 13.—Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania in a speech on law enforcement at the City Club today at noon said that the Republican machine in Pennsylvania led by Secretary of Treasury Mellon has been affiliated with the liquor interests and still is so.

Governor Pinchot told of a new order in Pennsylvania. On law enforcement he said:

"During the past two years every power of the State Government has been utilized to enforce the law. The handicaps have been many, for the regular Republican organization in Pennsylvania has for years been affiliated with the liquor interests and still is so. Secretary Mellon, who for twenty years was a whiskey distiller, and until the last month or two was one of the largest owners of whiskey in the United States, if not the very largest, is recognized as the leader of the machine which Penrose led until he died. So devoted are the wets in Pennsylvania to the man who should be their most formidable enemy that when I was defeated for delegate at large to the Republican National Convention by the wet machines of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the reason openly given was their resentment against my calling public attention to Secretary Mellon's refusal to enforce the law.

"Reluctant public officials have been compelled to recognize their duty, and the percentage of convictions and the severity of sentences for violations of the Eighteenth Amendment are both steadily rising. The raids on illegal saloons which the State Police are constantly making, usually under the noses of corrupt or inefficient local police officials, are building up a sound public sentiment, and generally the desire of the people of Pennsylvania for genuine law enforcement has at least doubled in the last two years. We are well on the way to an active public opinion which will refuse to tolerate the neglect, indifference, or refusal of local or national officials to perform their plain duty under the law.

"I regard law enforcement as the greatest moral issue now before the people of the United States. The present State Administration in Pennsylvania stands for it vigorously, unequivocably, and to the utmost limit of every power it has. It will so stand up to the very minute when the next Governor takes the oath of office, which will bind him in honor, as my oath binds me, to defend the Constitution against both the lawbreakers of the underworld and the lawbreakers of so-called respectable society who would stamp it under foot.

"Pennsylvania is still in its politics, one of the wet States, but in spite of the wet machine control over the last Legislature, which defeated the dry bill, the majority of the people of Pennsylvania are dry. In my opinion there would not be the slightest doubt of the action of my State on a wet and dry issue fairly fought out. The wets are noisy. Drunk or sober, that is their nature. But it is the drys who cut the ice."

Mrs. Mayme Masters returned Saturday noon from Nashville, Ark., where she has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lin Glasgow, for ten days.

Chicago Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, July 13.—Buying in good volume boosted grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Wheat scored most advances. Futures made best gains for the day. Coarse grains took the cue from wheat and finished substantially higher.

Continued high temperatures over the entire grain country, especially in the American Canadian Northwest, with consequent increase in black rust damage reports, made for a higher wheat market.

Shorts in corn were nervous and covered freely. Hot weather curling was reported from the west while other sections said need of rain is being felt.

Oats moved within a narrow range. The market was neglected.

Selling weakened provisions notwithstanding higher cables. Hogs were lower. Commission houses and packers sold.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY.

By Floyd Shoemaker, Sec. Mo., Historical Society.

July 12-18.

Main street and its romance is inseparably interwoven with the development of American life and American institutions. On the east side of Main Street, St. Louis, in a little log house, between Elm and Myrtle streets, there was born the first newspaper west of the Mississippi river.

In this little hut, built by Robidoux, a pioneer settler, a young man with no money but with ideals, pulled a lever of an old Ramage screw press, dampened a sheet of paper no bigger than a page of foolscap, and lifted from the press the initial copy of a newspaper destined to be a molder of public opinion for longer than a century. The paper was the Missouri Gazette. The young man was Joseph Charless. The day was July 12, 1808.

When the Missouri Gazette, the first paper in the present state of Missouri, enjoyed a little prosperity two rooms were occupied. In one of these Jacob Hinkle, who did the type-setting and printing work, lived with his family.

Charles was a man of vision. He saw the sacredness of the profession which guarded and nurtured what he called the "vestal fire." His was a tiny flame but he sensed the importance of its being attended by the proper hands. He said, "The most pure hands officiating for the whole community should be incessantly employed in keeping it alive."

Some of the guardians of this flame were men whose personalities stand out like monumental milestones by the side of the road that leads up to the journalism of today. Associated with the Missouri Gazette are the names of Edward Charles, Nathan Paschall, A. B. Chambers, George Knapp and John Knapp. These were men who believed that the saving grace in a newspaper, as in man, is moral fiber.

The Missouri Gazette has been known under eight different names from the time of its birth until its absorption by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in 1921. The Missouri Gazette was changed into the Louisiana Gazette, then the Missouri Gazette and Illinois Advertiser after which it again was called the Missouri Gazette. Following this change it was named the Missouri Gazette and Public Advertiser then the Missouri Republican, and St. Louis Republican, and lastly the St. Louis Republic.

That the Missouri Gazette was more than a mere newspaper championing the cause of one political party; the moneyed organ of a corporation; or the weapon of one man is evidenced by its more than a century of achievement and service. It saw three foreign wars, one Civil War, two fires, periods of stress that tried the soul of the men who kept the faith of its founder.

Our nation was in its infancy when the Missouri Gazette was born. It was not yet possessed of a self-consciousness that comes in adolescence. The Constitution was an experiment the War of 1812 was yet to be fought, the Mexican War was undreamed of and the seeds for the Civil War had not yet taken root.

Joseph Charless learned his Republicianism through risking his life in the fight for these principles in Ireland in 1795. When Charless worked as a printer in Philadalphia, the city made famous by the father of American printing and Journalism, his fellow workers mispronounced his name. To insure the proper Hibernian quota of syllables he added the extra "s" to his name making it, Charless.

As a printer, Joseph Charless set the type for the first quarto edition of the Bible in this country.

Charless married a widow named Mrs. Sarah McCloud, who was an active worker in the first Presbyterian Church in St. Louis.

Six of the twelve years of his life in America before he started the Missouri Gazette Charless spent in Kentucky. He always thought of his adopted country as a great Republic and not as a conference group of states.

A love for the profession and an appreciation of its service kept the editor of the Missouri Gazette at his desk. It was not momentary rewards. This is attested to by the editor's words, "Mr. Charless calls upon those of his subscribers who gave their notes or word of honor to pay in flour or corn to bring it in directly. Others who promised to pay in beef or pork, to deliver it as soon as possible, or their accounts will be placed in the magistrate's hands."

That he was forced to resort to others means than editing to earn his living is shown by the notice he ran in his paper. "Joseph Charless informs his friends that he receives boarders by the day, week, or month. Travelers can be accomodated with as good fare as the town affords on moderate terms. Stabling for eight or ten horses. Subscribers to the paper are requested to pay up. Pork and flour received."

On September 20, 1836, the Republican became a daily with six issues a week with emphasis on local news. In September, 1848, it startled the conservative element of St. Louis by publishing a Sunday edition. The fire of 1849 which swept away blocks of St. Louis business property, caused great loss to the Republican. Its type, press and other parts of its plant were destroyed but in two years time the Republican was located in a new six-story building.

The Republican suffered a second visitation of fire in 1870. The second loss was estimated at $170,000. Upon the same site there was rebuilt a temporary structure to house the publication and editorial offices until a new location could be secured. The new site was selected at Third and Chestnut streets where the proprietors built an elaborate and fireproof structure which was one of the best newspaper offices in the country at that time.

There were among the readers of this newspaper men and women who lived and died in the shadow of this institution. They tested the value of their newly acquired knowledge of their A B C lessons in its news columns. They continued to read the Republic as long as they lived.

From the early days when the Republic fostered the principles of Democratic Republicanism, as Thomas Jefferson called it, while it stood four-square on Whig principles, down to the time of its passing it acted in terms of the greatest common multiple; the people.

A marked quality in the Republic's organization was its esprit du corps. It was a school of metropolitan journalism. Its graduates are to be found in newspaper positions of prominence in all parts of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Tarpley and daughter, Betty Jane, returned yesterday from a ten days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Tarpley's uncle Iva Tarpley, at Siloam Springs, Ark., and Mr. and Mrs. Clark Scott, former residents of Maryville, at Walker, Mo.

7TH INNING IS A HOODOO

MERCHANTS' TEAM LOSES TO CORNING, MO., 3-6.

TO PLAY PICKERING

The unlucky seventh inning. It seems to be a hoodoo for the Maryville Merchants' Baseball Club, for in the last five games the seventh inning has proved to be the downfall of the local Merchants' team, and so it was yesterday in the game with Corning, Mo., played at the Merchants' Ball park east of the city.

The game started off wrong with Corning getting an unearned run the first time up to bat. Maryville scored in the third when Dixon got a hit and Tilson brought him in with a single. The score was 1 to 1 up to the sixth and in this frame after two men were down Corning scored, running a man across the home plate just before Hecker was caught trying to stretch a two-bagger into a triple.

Two errors in quick succession let two Corning runners cross the rubber and the visitors again scored in the eighth with two bingles, a single and a two bagger.

Maryville, however, pulled the only double play of the game, from short stop to first and from first base to Laughlin at home plate. The locals touched L. Thieman, brother of the renowned Jess, in the eighth. An error by the first baseman after two men were down gave Maryville the opportunity to score twice on two hits, which ended the scoring.

As the box office is the only reliance the Merchants' team has to keep ahead of the game financially, the receipts yesterday did not justify the efforts of the local players. It was the tenth game on the home diamond this season and shrinkage in gate receipts put the team in the red more than ever.

A game is scheduled for next Sunday with Pickering. It will have to mean a good attendance hereafter to finish out the rest of the games booked for the summer. The game with Pickering should be a good drawing card, as Pickering is noted for putting out a good team in any sport it enters.

St. Marys Married Men Lose Yesterday

St. Mary's Married Men were supposed to play the married men's team of three Catholic parishes at Conception yesterday afternoon. Due to a misunderstanding all of the St. Mary's players were not represented and it was rather a mixed line-up when the game started.

With one game each won the married men's teams of the St. Mary's Church and of the Parnell Catholic Church Parish of Parnell will meet in a deciding game next Sunday at Parnell.

Started to Work for Firm 51 Years Ago

It was on July 13, 1874, just a year over a half a century, that one of Maryville's pioneer business men, Daniel R. Eversole, commenced working for Lieber & Michau, one of the most prominent of the old-time firms of the city, who were located where the Townsend retail store now stands.

However, Mr. Eversole started in the game before this date, having obtained employment with G. Kuenster on October 13, 1873.

With the exception of two or three years Mr. Eversole has been continuously in business here.
